CRITICISM AND ABUSE.

There is a wide difference, says the Utica Herald, between criticism and abuse. The former may be legitimate and proper everywhere and at all times. The latter is seldom justifiable. Yet, under the cover of criticism, men are often assailed with the meanest abuse and the most ungenerous and unmanly fault-finding. There is a small class of prominent pretenders and would-be leaders, who are always seeking opportunities for venting their petty spleen and personal abuse through the channel of assumed criticism. They can not point out what they conceive to be the faults of a measure without vehemently arraigning all who support it. They cannot show the supposed errors of an official, whether willful or unwillful, without covering him with personal abuse, stabbing him with sly insinuation, and proclaiming their own immaculacy and superiority of judgment. They never rise above the level of their fellows in anything; but they seek to drag their fellows down beneath their own level. They take prejudice for principle, the admiration of virtue for the practice of it, and the profession of honesty for upright dealing. They judge others by their own unworthiness, and imagine themselves great because they pronounce others small. The discovery of vice, or the supposed discovery of vice, in others, they put forward as the evidence of virtue in themselves. To denounce, is with them to be independent and eloquent; and to proclaim their fellows unworthy, is to show themselves patriotic. Everything goes, in their philosophy, by negatives. What others are not, or what they assume others are not, they suppose themselves to be—and they never give others credit for disinterestedness, good intentions, or honest action. They build for themselves a heaven by making for others a hell, and exalt themselves to angels by degrading others to devils. Their imaginations are ever on the see-saw, and they always occupy the elevated end of the board, from which they smile with satisfaction on the poor wretches beneath them. Dissatisfied self-satisfied aspirants for place and power, they see themselves as unappreciated and neglected men of merit, whom the world will one day fall down and worship as its saviors, and to whose memory future generations will erect everlasting monuments. Vain, deluded, self-deceived men! They do not see the dust and ashes of oblivion already clinging to their garments.

Men of this stamp are conspicuous in the republican ranks at the present time. They put themselves forward as reformers par excellence, and are far more anxious to exhibit a flaw than to mend one; to disgrace their party than to purify it; to breed discord than to promote harmony; to pull down than to build up; to defeat men than to promote harmony; to pull down than to build up; to defeat men than to promote principles; to give aid and comfort to the enemy than consolidate and strengthen the republican party to which they profess to belong. They furnish the democracy the largest share of their political capital, and more effectually play into their hands than they could if they sailed under democratic colors. They enjoy the sympathies and confidence of the enemy, with which they appear to be in close consultation and co-operation. A strange spectacle they present to the world, which is at a loss whether to admire their persistency or detest their evident treachery.

Such is the attitude of the few malcontents in the republican ranks who are opposed to the renomination of President Grant, because they fancy they have not received that recognition at his hands to which they are entitled, or because they believe themselves entitled to the honors which the American people plainly mean to confer again upon the hero of the Appomattox. If they do not mean to work against the republican party, then they have allowed their vanity and ambition to cloud their perceptions and warp their judgment. But it is time that they began to see where they stand—that they are neither in nor out of the party, but are directing all their energies toward the defeat of its principles. Their moral influence is with the democrats, and the masses who at first believed them honest and sincere, now begin to count them as deserters and traitors. Their power for either good or evil is rapidly slipping away from them. They will soon be called to decide whether they will serve God or Baal—whether they will continue to labor for the promotion of republican principles and the success of the republican party, or prefer to go over to the enemy and fight under the black banner of anarchy and retrogression, hoisted by the excommunicated democracy. They cannot make that choice too soon.

The report of the committee of Congress, says the Pittsburgh Commercial, on the financial condition of the eleven States that went into the rebellion, concludes with a summary from which we gather the following date: The lately rebel States entered the rebellion with debts and contingent liabilities amounting to $102 516,777; they had property, exclusive of slaves, valued at $2,758, 825,006; they emerged from the war with an increased indebtedness and loss amounting to $1,575.900,390, exclusive of the loss of slave property.

In the confussion which followed the collaspe of the rebel government, much valuable matter of record was lost, but the best authorities have placed the rebel debt, on the 1st of April, 1865, at $2.345, 597,823; and the total ascertained loss by the rebellion in property, assets and debts, State and Confederate, is safely put at the enormous amount of $5,262, 303,554.

If this story is true, railway and steamships stockholders may as well prepar to reef sale. About three weeks ago a Frenchman perfected a balloon on which he had for a long time been engaged, and when all was complete, he made an ascent with thirteen men, the result seeming to have proved to demonstration the perfection of his method of guiding. The balloon is said to have obeyed the helm with the utmost alacrity, and to have progressed rapidly in the teeth of the wind. The next thing will probably be a realization of Tennyson's vission of "the nations' airy navies grappling the central blue."

That "Reverend Scoundrel."—We have been requested to state that Rev. Huston, "minister of one of the most fashionable Methodist Episcopal churches in Baltimore," alledged in a telegraphic dispatch to have "accomplished the ruin of a number of young ladies, members of his flock," and to have "fled the city, leaving his wife and family behind him," is a member and pastor of the Church South, for whose evil doings the Church North is in nowise answerable, being separate and distinct from the organization to which the offending minister belongs.—Ex.

The pall-bearers at the funeral of the late Senator Evans, at West Chester, Pa., had all been apprentices under the deceased in the Village Record office, were as follows: Judge Paxson, of Philadelphia; Judge Butler, of West Chester; George W. Vernon, of Wilmington Republican; H. F. Darlington, of Doylestown Intelligencer; E. L. Christman, of the American Republican; and Wm. H. Dock, of the Village Record.

In Danville, Pa., one day last week, two drunken ruffians forced their way into the house of Mrs. Carstetter, the inmates fleeing before them. Making their way to the room of a young girl lying ill with consumption, they outraged her person in the most brutal manner. One of them, Jeremiah Hancks, was arrested next morning in a state of beastly intoxication, but the other, named Denny McGinley, escaped. The girl is not expected to recover.

Heavy Verdict.—The jury in the great oil suit of Owston & Bowers vs. the Allegheny Valley railroad company, which has been on trial for the past two weeks in Pittsburgh, gave a verdict for the plaintiffs for $27,094.90. Mr. Hampton, counsel for the defendants, has made a motion for a new trial.

Daniel McCarty, aged 78, a pensioner of 1812, living in Pocahontas county, Va., was married recently to a woman of 28. The ceremony was performed in front of a tavern, everybody on horse-back, and the thermometer at eight below zero.

Alabama Claims

Our Government Stands Firm!

GREAT ANXIETY IN ENGLAND TO RECEIVE THE REPLY TO GRANVILLE'S NOTE

Our Government Willing to Abide by the Decision of the Board of Arbitration.

Washington, February 11.—There are no new developments relative to the treaty at Washington, although, as has been already stated, our Government is not disposed to modify its statement of the case. No formal reply can be made to Lord Granville's note to General Schenck until its exact text is received, which is expected toward the close of this week. There has been much interest but no marked excitement at the position of affairs, nor apprehension that, even should England recede from the treaty, results would follow more serious in their consequences than existed before it was negotiated. Nothing has even been hinted in official circles about strengthening our national defenses to meet a possible contingency, and no one has publicly expressed the opinion that such measures had become necessary. It is reported in Eexecutive quarters that our Government is willing to abide by the result of the tribunal of arbitrators, in all matters submitted to their determination, and will expect a corresponding degree of good faith on the part of the British Government.

THE TREATY ARBITRATORS, AGENTS AND COUNSEL.

Many persons have forgotten, if they ever knew, who are the arbitrators, agents and counsel under the Treaty of Washington. The treaty provides that the five arbitrators who are to meet at Goneva, Switzerland, to decide the "Alabama claims" shall be appointed, one by the President of the United States, one by the Queen of Great Britain, one by the King of Italy, one by the President of the Swiss Confederation and one by the Emperor of Brazil. In accordance with this provision, the following have been appoired: Arbitrator on the part of the United States, Charles Francis Adams; of Great Britain, the Right Honorable Sir Alexander Cockburn, Baronet, Lord Chief Justice of England; of Italy, His Excellency Senator Count Sciopis; of Switzerland, Mr. Jacob Stampfli; of Brazil, Baron d'Itajuba. The treaty also provides that each of the governments shall appoint an agent and counsel for the preparation and presentation of the respective bills of claims to the arbitrators. These agents, as appointed, are, Agent on the part of the United States, J. C. Bancroft Davis; of Great Britian, Right Hon. Lord Tenterden; Counsel for the United States, Caleb Cushing, William M. Evarts, Morrison R. Waite; Counsel for Great Britain, Sir Roundell Palmer; Solicitor for the United States, Chas. C. Beamsn, Jr.

CURRENT OF COMMENT IN WASHINGTON.

[From Washington Letter to the Boston Advertiser.]

The current of comment is largely directed to the matter of the presentation of consequential damages in our case at Geneva, and upon the wisdom or propriety of including them in our demands upon the English Government. It appears that the connection of this class of claims with the American case was seriously objected to last summer while the case was being prepared, and these objections have been revived in greater force than ever since the news of the flurry in England. It is well understood by those who are familiar with the proceedings of the Joint High Commission that the English Commissioners were continually averse to any agreement which should admit the liability of England for this class of damages, and while they failed to have them definitely excluded from the treaty, it was tacitly understood among the Commissioners that they would not be actually presented. The same view of the case was taken by several of the most eminent publicists and international authorities who were confidently consulted during the preparation of our case last summer, and the events of the last few days they now assert have proved conclusive the wisdom of their position. It was unwise in the Americans to claim damages for losses which could never be estimated nor defined, and which they had every reason to believe would be thrown out the moment they were considered by the international tribunal. It would have been, it is argued, more dignified for this government to have presented only demands which they were prepared to prove, which they honestly believed they were entitled to present, and which they were determined to insist upon. This would have included only the losses inflicted by the rebel cruisers, for whose existence and operations England is directly responsible, and possibly the expense incurred in their capture and destruction. It is held to be an unworthy expedient for the United States to include in this case a large and cumbersome mass of damages for which they had no expectation of obtaining allowance, and which they have offered to the tribunal merely to be thrown out. So earnestly was this view held by several gentlemen who were consulted that it is generally understood that one of the counsel declined his appointment upon this explicit ground, and that Mr. Evarts accepted only with the understanding that he was not to be compelled to press these claims, which he has no confidence or faith will be successful. In regard to the action of England, it is said, by gentlemen high in authority, that it is undoubtedly a proper and judicious course for them to refuse at the outset to meet or in any way admit the validity of the claims for contingent damages rather than to go before the court of arbitration and then refuse to pay them, should they by any possibility be allowed. Whatever may be the opinion regarding the technical merits of the situation, the news from England has but one effect upon the popular mind. Whenever the possibility of war or another treaty is suggested there is but one opinion in all quarters, which is, that under no circumstances can America retire or withdraw from the treaty, nor permit England to do so. Both parties having accepted the obligation it is the firm determination of this country to hold England to her agreement, and, if necessary, to compel the fullest compliance. There is no disposition on the part of members of Congress to permit this government to retire from its ground before the Geneva trabunal, and there is no evidence that the administration desires or purposes to do anything of the kind.

WHO MADE THE MISCHIEF?

[From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.]

In all this matter Mr. Bancroft Davis seems to have been the chief mischief-maker. He is credited, more than anybody else, with exciting in the English mind, by the quarrel with Mr. Motley and Senator Sumner, the unfounded notion that the administration was changing front, and he it is who must be held responsible for the language in which our "case" is stated. We do not say that the substance of part 6 of that 'case' is in any way beyond the honest American feeling of wrong and loss sustained by us at the hands of England; we do not think it is. But the expression of it might be altered for the better, and the sharpness of its tone contrasts unpleasantly enough with the honeyed words unexchanged on both sides at Washington in April, at New York and London in May, and at Bangor and Vanceboro last November. Probably it could not have been drawn so as not to give offense, but it need not have wounded the English self-love and sense of fair-play so deeply as it appears to have done.—If Mr. Davis is truly responsible for the language of this chapter of the "case," he has added another trophy to his monument as a breeder of strife. The Sumner-Motley quarrel, the Spanish-Cuban quarrel, the Catacazy quarrel, and now this unfortunate complication, seem to owe much of their bitterness to the rancor or the want of tact displayed by Mr. Davis.

UNEXPECTED ABILITY ON THE AMERICAN SIDE.

[From the London Times, Jan. 25.]

It is no mean proof of the ability displayed in the American statement on the Alabama claims that it places the alledged grievances of the United States in a somewhat new aspect. Often as the facts had been stated and reviewed by Mr. Adams and Mr. Seward, it is but just to own that in the case now laid before the arbitrators they are marshalled and grouped more effectively than ever before. The chief strength of this case may be said to consist in the skillful development of an argument contained in one of Mr. Fish's dispatches that Great Britian allowed herself to become at once "the arsenal, the navy yard, and the Treasury of the Confederates."

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

LETTER FROM SENATOR WILSON DEFINING HIS POSITION.

Senator Wilson has addressed the following letter to a political and personal friend:

Washington, Feb. 13, 1872. Dear Sir: You ask me "how the withdrawal Mr. Colfax of his irrevocable decision not to be a candidate affects your position?" I have to say in reply, that when the Vice President announced that he should not be a candiate for re-election, and the position might be claimed by the friends of some Eastern or Southern man, many gentleman, some of whom had kindly supported me in 1868 and others who had supported Mr. Colfax, Mr. Wade or Mr. Fenton, said, or wrote to me, that they intended to give me their influence for the vice presidency. I had just been elected for the fourth time to the Senate, had entered upon the full term, and had every reason to be gratified and satisfied with my position. This evidence of the personal regard and friendship of many of the noblest men of several States could not but gratify that feeling which prizes recognition by the whole country, a feeling entertained by most men who have long been in the service of their States. After ascertaining that the Vice President's decisions was final, I assented to the request of friends before leaving for Europe, early June last. After my return and before the meeting of Congress, several leading men, in more than a dozen States, many of whom I had served with in Congress, assured me that they and the Republicans of their States were for my nomination. I have left this matter to others, and up to this date, the 13th of February, I have not written a word to any one, nor replied to the many letters I have received on the subject. The revocation by the Vice President of his declaration was to me a surprise. It placed me in an unpleasant position, and my first impulse was to withdraw from the contest. But by the advice of some of the best Republicans of the land, East, West and South, I leave the question to personal and political friends. Whatever may be the result, I shall be content and shall do what I can for the unity and success of the Republican party, whoever may be its candidates, for I am bound to it alike by conviction and by association, by gratitude for its deeds of patriotism and liberty, and by hopes of the services it may yet render to the country.

GRANT AND THE TARIFF.

The free traders are felicitating themselves on the prospect of a victory in the struggle in Congress, which they claim has been precipitated by the free tea and coffee instruction to the committee of Ways and Means. Without stopping to examine the grounds of this confidence, it may be said with certainty that the tariff question will enter as a leading issue into the next Presidential canvass. In view of this, to General Grant's emphatic declarations in favor of protecting home industry and capital attaches greater importance than probably he had any thought when he uttered them. He stands against free trade in whatever disguise it may appear, and if the issue is made, as the Revenue Reformers promise, Grant will of necessity be the Protection candidate. So let the other side present their candidate and make the issue as quickly as possible. In such a contest even Mr. Greeley will cease to object to Gen. Grant. On such an issue Pennsylvania would give him a larger majority in 1872 than she gave in 1868. Let the free traders derive what comfort they can from the prospect.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

A Man in Chicago Commits Suicide Four Days after his Marriage.

On Tuesday last, John H. Lewis, foreman of Singer & Talcott's stone yard, No. 210 Market street, was married to an exemplary young woman. Yesterday morning, after four days of marital experience, his lifeless body was found in the office of his employers, where he had slept for the first time since his marriage. A bullet hole through his head, and a letter in his pocket, told the story of the self-murderer. He left a letter, addressed to a particular friend, in which he made mention of his personal property, and desired that his money should be equally divided between his mother and sister, who live in this city. He also stated that he committed the act of self-destruction coolly, that he was not deranged, and that he had meditated the deed for a long time. He made no mention of his wife, and said that he quitted the world without fear and without regret. Deceased had been in the employ of Singer & Talcott for seventeen years. He was thirty-two years of age, and was in good circumstances.—Chicago Post.

The steamer John Kyle, on the way from New Orleans to St. Louis, struck the lock on the chain below Commerce, Illinois, on the night of the 23rd inst. and sunk. She had on board 500 tons of freight. The loss is estimated at about $100,000, upon which there is an insurance of $75,000 in Cincinnati and Pittsburg companies. The Kyle was built in Cincinnati, and was about two years old.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN

BELLEFONTE, PA.

JOHN BURNS AT GETTYSBURG.

BY BRET HARTE.

Have you heard the story that gossips tell
Of Burns of Gettysburg!—No? Ah, well:
Brief is the glory that hero earns,
Briefer the story of poor John Burns:
He was the fellow who won renown,
The only man who didn't back down
When the rebels rode through his native town;
But held his own in the fight next day,
When all his townsfolks ran away.
That was in July, sixty-three,
That very day that General Lee,
Flower of southern chivalry,
Baffled and beaten, backward reeled
From a stubborn Meade and a barren field.

I might tell how, but the day before,
John Burns stood at his cottage door,
Looking down the village street,
Where in the shade of his peaceful vine,
He heard the low of his gathered kine,
And felt their breath with incense sweet;
Or I might say, when the sunset burned
The old farm gable, he thought it turned
The milk that fell, in a babbling flood,
Into the milk-pail red as blood!
Or how he fancied the hum of bees
Were bullets buzzing among the trees.
But all such fanciful thoughts as these
Were strange to a practical man like Burns,
Who minded only his own concerns,
Troubled no more by fancies fine
Than one of his calm-eyed, long-tailed kine,
Quite old-fashioned and matter-of-fact,
Slow to argue, but quick to act.
That was the reason as some folks say,
He fought so well on that terrible day.

And it was terrible. On the right
Raged for hours the heavy fight,
Thundered the battery's double bass,
Difficult music for men to face;
While on the left—where now the graves
Undulate like the living waves.
That all that day unceasing swept
Up to the pits the rebels kept—
Round shot plowed the upland glades;
Sown with bullets, reaped with blades;
Shattered fences here and there
Tossed with splinters in the air;
The very trees were stripped and bare;
The barns that once held yellow grain
Were heaped with harvests of the slain;
The cattle bellowed on the plain,
The turkeys screamed with might and main,
And brooding barn-owls left their rest
With strange shells bursting in each nest.

Just where the tide of battle turns,
Erect and lonely stood old John Burns.
How do you think the man was dressed?
He wore an ancient long buff vest,
Yellow as saffron—but his best:
And, buttoned over his manly breast,
Was a bright blue coat, with a rolling collar,
And large gilt buttons,—size of a dollar,—
With tails that the country folks called "swaller."

He wore a broad-brimmed bell-crowned hat,
White as the locks on which it sat.
Never had such a sight been seen,
For forty years on the village green,
Since old John Burns was a country bean,
And went to the "quilting" long ago.

Close at his elbows all that day,
Veterans of the Peninsula,
Sunburnt and bearded, charged away;
And striplings, downy of lip and chin—
Clerks that the Home Guard mustered in—
Glanced, as they passed, at the hat he wore,
Then at the rifle his right hand bore;
And hailed him, from out their youthful lore,
With scraps of a slangy repertoire:
"How are you, White Hat!" "Put her through!"
"Your head's level," and "Bully for you!"
Called him "Daddy,"—begged he'd dismount
The name of the tailor who made his clothes,
And what was the value he set on those;
While Burns, unmindful of jest and scoff,
Stood there picking the rebels off—
With his long brown rifle and bell-crown hat,
And the swallow-tails they were laughing at.

'Twas but a moment, for that respect
Which clothes all courage their voices checked;
And something the wildest could understand
Spake in the old man's strong right hand;
And his corded throat and his lurking frown
Of his eyebrows under his old bell-crow;
Until, as they gazed, there crept in awe
Through the ranks in whispers, and some men saw,
In the antique vestments and long white hair,
The Past of the Nation in battle there;
And some of the soldiers since declare
That the gleam of his old white hat afar,
Like the crested plume of the brave Navarre,
That day was the oriflamme of war.

So raged the battle. You know the rest;
How the rebels, beaten and backward pressed
Broke at the final charge, and ran.
At which John Burns—a practical man—
Shouldered his rifle, unbent his brows,
And then went back to his bees and cows.

That is the story of old John Burns;
This is the moral the reader learns:
In fighting the battle the question's whether
You'll show a hat that's white, or a feather!

The Two Sides of The Question.

The most prominent topic now before the public, says the N. Y. Mercantile Journal, is the misunderstanding which has arisen in regard to our treaty with Great Britain, and the "case" our Government presented to the Board of Arbitrators assembled to adjust the "Alabama Claims." The precise point of this new difference ought to be generally understood; yet very few of our journals attempt to make it clear, though so much is said concerning the difficulty.

As the High Commission which framed the treaty proceeded with their work, they kept, of course, a record of their deliberations. This, greatly condensed and assented to by all as a fair statement, was added to the treaty, as is usual in such cases, under the name of a Protocol. The object of such a Protocol to treaties is to aid in the interpretation of what is intended by the framers themselves in the various provisions of their instrument. In the present instance this Protocol says:

"At the conference held on the 8th of March, the American commissioners stated the people and government of the United States felt that they had sustained a great wrong and that great injuries and losses were inflicted upon their commence and their material interest by the course and conduct of Great Britain during the recent rebellion in the United States. * * * That the history of the Alabama and other cruisers which had been fitted out, or armed, or equipped, or which had received augmentation of force in Great Britain, or in her colonies, and of the operations of those vessels, showed extensive direct losses in the capture and destruction of a large number of vessels, with their cargoes, and in the heavy national expenditures in the pursuit of the cruisers, and indirect injury in the transfer of a large part of the American commercial marine to the British flag, in the enhanced payments of insurance, in the prolongation of the war, and in the addition of a large sum to the cost of the war, and the suppression of the rebellion; and also showed that Great Britain, by reason of failure in the proper observance of her duties as a neutral, had become justly liable for the acts of those cruisers and of their tenders; that the claims for the loss and destruction of private property which had thus far been presented amounted to about fourteen millions of dollars, without interest, which amount was liable to be greatly increased by claims which had not been presented; that the cost to which the Government had been put in the pursuit of cruisers could easily be ascertained by certificates of Government accounting officers; that in the hope of an amicable settlement no estimate was made of the indirect losses, without prejudice, however, to the right to indemnification on their account in the event of no such settlement being made. * * *

"The British commissioners replied that her Majesty's Government could not admit that Great Britain had failed to discharge toward the United States the duties imposed on her by the rules of international law, or that she was justly liable to make good to the United States the losses occasioned by the acts of the cruisers to which the American commissioners had referred. * * *

"They added that although Great Britain had, from the beginning, disavowed any responsibility for the acts of the Alabama, and the other vessels, she had already shown her willingness, for the sake of the maintenance of friendly relations with the United States, to adopt the principle of arbitration, provided that a fitting arbitrator could be found, and that an agreement could become to as to the points to which arbitration should apply, * * * and they had now to repeat, on behalf of their Government, the offer of arbitration.

"The American commissioners expressed their regret at this decision of the British commissioners, and said further that they could not consent to submit the question of the liability of her Majesty's Government to arbitration unless the principles which should govern the arbitrator in the consideration of the facts could be first agreed upon."

The British Commissioners replied that they were not authorized to agree to an arbitration on such conditions, but they would communicate the proposal to their Government, which they did, and received that Government's assent.

The Protocol subsequently states that:

"At the respective conferences on March 9th, 10th, 13th and 14, the Joint High Commission considered the form of the declaration of principles or rules which the American Commissioners desired to see adopted for the instruction of the arbitrator, and laid down for observance by the two governments in future."

These rules were the three incorporated into the treaty, and which are familiar. But neither in the treaty nor in the Protocol is there a y further specific reference is these "indirect losses." The treaty provides for four different boards of arbitration to settle four different classes of outstanding questions between the two governments, viz: Boundary line; Fisheries; Claims upon either government, not included in the "Alabama" question, arising between the 13th of April, 1861, and the 9th of April, 1865; and the Claims included in the "Alabama" question. These latter were to be refered to a Board of Arbitration to consist of five members; of whom the two governments were to appoint one each, and the King of Italy, the Republic of Switzerland and the Emperor of Brazil were to appoint each one. To this tribunal the two governments were to present each its "case." The treaty then provides that

"The said tribunal shall first determine as to each vessel separately whether Great Britain has, by any act or omission failed to fulfill any of the duties set forth in the foregoing three rules, or recognized by the principles of international law not inconsistent with such rules, and shall notify such fact as to each of the said vessels. In case the tribunal find that Great Britain has failed to fulfil any duty or duties as aforesaid it may, if it think proper, proceed to award a sum in gross to be paid by Great Britain to the United States for all the claims referred to it; and in such case the gross sum so awarded shall be paid in coin by the Government of Great Britain to the Government of the United States, at Washington, within twelve months after the date of the award. * * * * *

But, according to the tenth article,

"In case the tribunal finds that Great Britain has failed to fulfil any duty or duties as aforesaid, and does not award a sum in gross, the high contracting parties agree that a board of assessors shall be appointed to ascertain and determine what claims are valid, and what amount shall be paid by Great Britain to the U. States on account of the liability arising from such failure, AS TO EACH VESSEL, according to the extent of such liability as decided by the arbitrator."

The "Board of Arbitration" thus provided for, met at Geneva, Switzerland, December 18th, and each government presented its "case," the United States claiming not only direct damages for the vessels and goods destroyed but a large indirect damages for the cost of prolonging the war, claiming that this would have terminated soon after the battle of Getteysburgh, had it been for the countenance of England to the rebels.

To this the other side replied that it was understood these indirect claims should be waived in case of an "amicable settlement;" and they did not suppose that such claims were to be submitted there. The United States answered that wher they spoke of an "amicable settlement" in the Protocol, they meant that the commissioners should agree, then and there, to pay a certain gross amount of damages, which the High Commission itself should fix upon. The English reply with great warmth, "We did not so understand it. We supposed we were making the 'amicable settlement,' upon condition of which you agreed to waive these claims for indirect damage. And that we are right in this understanding seems evident, among other things, from the provision in the treaty, that if the Board of Arbitration shall decide that we were in fault, but does not award a 'gross amount of damages,' then a Board of Assessment shall be appointed to asses the damages from each vessel separately, which we don't see to be consistent with this claim for indirect damages." Now, that they are honest in this understanding, is evident from many considerations. For example, Sir Stafford Northcote, one of the members of the High Commission, when he was defending the treaty in the House of Commons, soon after his return to England, said:

"In previous conventions, many points were left so vague that it would have been possible under those claims to have raised a number of questions which this country was not willing to submit to arbitrations. They might have raised questions with regard to what they called England's premature recognition of belligerency, and the consequential damages resulting from the prolongation of the war, and with regard also to other questions which this country could not have admitted. Instead of this being the case, however, the treaty as actually concluded narrowed the questions at issue very closely, by confining the reference solely to losses growing out of the acts of particular vessels, and so shutting out a large class of claims upon which the Americans had heretofore insisted."

And this was certainly the understanding, at least very widely, in this country at the time. The ground taken by Mr. Sumner, of asking England to pay for the expenses of the last years of the war, if ever popular among us, was, to a great extent, abandoned. Such utterances as the following, from the Independent of July 13th (which has, however, since radically changed its ground), were common. Speaking of these 'indirect claims,' it said:

"The theory of exemplary damages, upon which some American statesmen were disposed to insist, does not, as it should not, and in the nature of things could not, form any part of this treaty. It is the theory of passion rather than of wise statesmanship; and withal, admits of no practical application. The actual damages constitute a measurable quantity; and these, when duly ascertained, Great Britain agrees to pay. The number of vessels captured by the Rebel cruisers during the war is two hundred and thirty-four; and the claims filed by the United States for the loss of these vessels and their cargoes now amount to about thirteen millions of dollars. It will be for the arbitrators or assessors to decide what portion of these claims is valid under the three rules mutually adopted."

We believe that most people were surprised to know that the claims for indirect damages had deen brought forward in presenting our case at Geneva, and they now regard it as part of the lawyer's plan of getting reasonable damages by setting high the amount claimed, rather than the offering of a demand which is expected to be itself allowed. Fifteen hundred or two thousand million dollars—enough, nearly, to pay the balance of our national debt—would be a nice sum to receive in damages from England but; we take it, no reasonable man expects this. About the policy of even asking it their will be different opinions. But certainly no one will read the argument of the counsel of the United States in presenting the case to the Board of Arbitration without feeling more than ever how deeply our country was wronged. It is very long—some 500 pages—but it exhausts the subject. Perhaps this, as much as the money claimed, has raised such a storm of feeling in England. The London Times says of it:

"It is no mean proof of the ability displayed in the American statement on the Alabama claims that it places the alleged grievance of the United States in a somewhat new aspect. Often as the facts had been stated and reviewed by Mr. Adams and Mr. Seward, it is but just to own that in the case now laid before the Arbitrators they are marshaled and grouped more effectively than ever before."

THE DAY OF REST.—Never was there a more blessed institution than the Sunday, the sacred day of rest from labor. For the soul's health and the body's health of the human race, on at least one day in seven there should be an ever-recurring intermission of daily toil. Thus let a man attain to the period of threescore years and ten, he has gained a holiday of the years' duration, even if his lot has been labor for the remaining threescore years. Let childhood be taught to use, and manhood discreetly use, this blessed breathing time, as a day on which to raise the thought beyond the world, not less than for purposes of innocent recreation.

An Irish jockey, once selling an old nag to a gentleman, frequently observed with emphatic earnestness that he was an honest horse. After the purchase, the gentleman asked what he meant by an "honest" horse? "Why, sir," replied the seller, "whenever I rode him he threatened to throw me, and he certainly never deceived me."

One sixth of the persons burned out at Chicago, needed help but a few days.

Why I Left The Masons.

BY ELI SHAY.

Years ago I lived in the city of Brooklyn, and had recently became a member of the Masonic Lodge, and of course was very punctual in my weekly attendance, much to the disgust of my wife, who, with the whole family, was constantly quizzing me as to our doings at our meetings, and upon my asserting that riding the goat was a part of our business, they persisted in knowing all particulars about the animal, until I, to silence them, said I would bring him home and show him.

One evening about eleven o'clock as I was plodding home from the Lodge, I heard in advance of me a continuous and pathetic bleating, and I soon came up with a large goat standing upon the walk who had evidently lost his bearings, wandered away, and being in great grief, was crying—"I want to go home."

I never liked goats, and my first impulse was to kick this one (and I have always regretted I didn't do it), but the mournful tone of his voice created a little sympathy for him in my breast, and I patted him kindly on the head, and went on. But the goat followed close to my heels, and although I assured him his home did not lie this way, but was probably down the street we had just crossed, he persisted. As we approached my house I more earnestly remonstrated with him and constantly patting him on the rear with the toe of my boot, to return one block. I was much out of breath myself, and I said to the goat, "Now old fellow, sit down on the curb and rest yourself—you're tired—I'll be back in a minute—just want to go round the corner"—and I started on the run, but in a moment the goat was at my heels. I reached my home, darted up the step, opened the door, and with a feeling of great relief stepped in, when to my horror through my legs into the hall bounded the goat with a triumphant bleat that echoed through the upper halls and chambers, awakening the whole household. The hall lamp was burning brightly, but up the stairways all was dark, and I saw at a glance that everything was arranged for the special convenience of gazers from above.

The goat had retired to the further end of the hall and stood facing me, occasionally bleating, but as I began to be somewhat exercised in my mind about then, I cannot say whether the tones were those of triumph and ridicule or of defiance. Whichever they were, I declared war at once and made for the goat who seemed to understand that I meant business, and he met me half way with a blow from his head which staggered me and forced me back a step or two, which blow he was ungentlemanly enough to repeat one after the other until I was driven to the bottom of the stairs, when he resumed his position in the far end of the hall and agrin faced me.

"Round Number one.—First hit for the goat," came to my ears from aloft, and as I cast my eyes upward a peal of laughter came tearing down the stairs and I could just perceive a crowd hanging over the banisters of both flights, which I knew full well was made up of wife, children, a waggish young friend who lived with us, two visitors, and the servants, a full audience in the dress circle, looking down into the pit to see the fun.

"Oh Pa's brought home the goat," cried one of the children.

"Yes, and he's practicing with it," said another.

"Which degree is that performance in?" asked my wife.

"Glad we didn't go to the theatre tonight," chimed in one of my visitors.

"Time! Time!" shouted my young friend from the upper tier, and I thought so too, and in I went for the second round.

But now I changed my tactics; I advanced slowly, keeping close to the wall, and endeavored to get behind the beast, thinking I would try the pats on his rear with my boots again, in hopes they would calm him and persuade him to retire as they had done before while outdoors, but he evidently objected to any "change of base," and once more "charged home" upon me.

This time however, I caught him by the horns, and then the struggle commenced in earnest. The goat lifted up his voice in loud protestations of "foul" play, and I opened my mouth and gave utterance to hopes and wishes in regard to goats in general and this one in particular, which it might not be proper to repeat here, as I had my hands so full at the time I could not give my usual thought and attention to the selection of the elegant words and expressions which usually characterize my conversation. I finally said—"you brute! you won't go out, ha! but"—and he butted; and he was the strongest butter I ever met with; so strong that in spite of my holding by his horns, he spread himself all over the hall, so thoroughly stirring me up that I laid down on the floor to recover my equanimity, at which the goat suggested a series of ground tumblings, which we went through with I believe with honor to our ourselves, and to the great satisfaction of the delighted audience—and at the end of which I picked myself up from the floor at the foot of the stairs and saw the goat regaining his corner at the end of the hall—giving a victorious bleat as he did so.

"Round two.—First knock down for the goat," came from aloft, and an outburst of cheers and of clapping of hands followed.

"Get on to the goat and ride him, Pa," cried one of the children.

"Oh yes, do Pa," shouted another, "that will be nice."

"Don't you use a saddle, dear?" said my wife. "Won't the door-mat do?"

I was furious, and sprang for the animal regardless of time or situation. He also started for me under full sail, and as we closed, I sprang high in the air with legs wide apart, and his head and neck passed under me, and I lit square on his back, seized his short tail, giving it a twist, and at the same time to make all even, gave my legs a twist under him, and, said I, "now goat," but he must have understood me to say "now go it," for away we went up and down that hall backwards and forwards, the goat wild and I nearly so, but beginning rather to enjoy the ride as I heard the laughs and cheers of the spectators, and knew they were for me this time, and especially when I heard the commendatory words from my wife, "Don't he ride nice for a new beginner?"

At this point the goat, disgusted either with the use he was being put to, or at the peculiar curve I was getting on his tail, bolted out the door, and as he did so I let all go, rolled off, sprang up and shut the door, just as the goat, having turned on the step charged upon me again and came with his whole force crashing against one of the panels of the door, which he split; but from the noise outside I judged the concussion threw him down the steps and extorted from him a loud bleat of mingled despair and contemptuous indignation.

"Round three.—Goat flung out the ring," came down the stairs followed by ringing cheers and cries of "Bravo, bravo!" I put out the light, and as I ascended the stairs my wife commenced singing,

"See! the conquering hero comes,"

in which all joined, I among the rest.

For some time I had a tender spot which to touch would make me leap from my chair and fairly rave round the room and do my best I could not regain the ground I lost that night on the Masonic question. Batteries opened upon me every Lodge-night and a charge for wheat bran appeared on my grocery bill, which my wife said was for the goat when he came again.

Finally a compromise was effected. I was to leave my Lodge and stay at home and the shadow of the goat should leave the house. Our compromise has been faithfully kept.

Who Are The Young.

The feelings which are conveniently assumed to be the accompaniments of age are not its especial consequences. We meet with old men and old women who have not yet according to common parlance, reached their prime. The beauty of youth has faded in them, or been crushed out of them. The candle of life, though not half burned down to the socket, seems already to emit that "sable smoke whence vanishes the flame." Sometimes suffering, sometimes sin, and not unfrequently both—the one the consequence of the other—produce the ordinary effects of age prematurely; while, on the other hand, we occasionally meet with the freshness of youth in people who have long passed the grand climacteric. But in this "fast" era elderly youths are more common than youthful veterans. No man can walk the streets of New York without admitting that fact. Men who live rationally, moderately, in accord with the true purposes of life, are generally young in spirit to the last; but the sordid, the sensual, the unsympathizing, whose hearts are set wholly upon material things, always grow old before their time, and find in the end that the idols they have worshipped, at the expense of all that is good and noble in human nature, can give them neither help nor solace.

Moral Influence.

The influence of example is far reaching; for our experience and conflicts with the world lead us at times to indulge misanthropic sentiments, and charge all men with selfish and impure motives. The play of pride, prejudice and passion, and the eagerness manifested by the great majority of men to advance their own interests, often, at the expense of others, and in violation of the golden rule, cause us to look with suspicion on the best intents of others. Arrogance hypocrisy, treachery and violence every day outrage justice, till we are almost disposed to distrust human nature, and become discouraged. But amid all that is disheartening in this busy, noisy world now and then there is presented to us a life of such uniform virture that we recognize in it a character that brings hope for the perfect development and ultimate regeneration of our race. Such characters are precious, and such examples should be held up to the world for its admiration and imitation; they should be snatched from oblivion, and treasured in the hearts and thoughts of all to aid in the process of forming habits and maturing character.

IF we subdue not our passions, they will subdue us.

BRIGHAM YOUNG—HIS SANDS OF LIFE RUNNING OUT—A LEAF FROM HIS PAST HISTORY.

The telegraph reports Brigham Young as rapidly failing. This extraordinary man was born at Whittingham, Vermont on the 1st of June, 1801, and, therefore, lacks but little of seventy-one years of age. His father was a farmer, who had been a soldier of the revolution, and Brigham doubtless inherited something of his daring and love of excitement. His first connection with the monstrous hierarchy of Mormonism, of which he has so long been the head and exponent, was, in 1832, when he announced himself as a "convert," and making his way to Kirtland, Ohio, the then headquarters of the new dispensation, was ordained an elder and began to preach. His talents, shrewdness, and especially his wonderful quickness and aptness in reading men, attracted the attention of the prophet Joseph Smith, who soon ordained him as one of the Twelve Apostles, then first constituted, and sent him on a proselyting tour through the Western States. He was signally successful in making converts, and at the death of Joseph Smith, in 1844, secured the election to his vacant position of first president, over Sidney Rigdon, Smith's original partner in the fraud, who, being contumacious, naturally enough at thus being thrown overboard, was solemnly "cut off," cursed and handed over to the devil "to be buffeted in the flesh a thousand years." In 1847, Brigham removed to Salt Lake city, the Mormons having been driven out of Nauvoo in 1845, and a year later the faithful emigrated thither and founded the new kingdom, which they called Deseret. The course of Brigham Young since that time, his repeated browbeatings of the territorial authorities, and his virtually unopposed sway for so many years are fresh in the recollections of our readers. By his shrewdness and the ignorance and superstition of his followers, he has not only made himself the spiritual and political head of the community, but has contrived to have the handling of all the funds and to have amassed from the tithes and from private speculation a gigantic fortune, which, from its varied and widely scattered character, it would be impossible to estimate closely. Of late it has appeared as if his course were about run, and that justice was at last to overtake him for his complicity in many crimes, of which there can be no reasonable doubt. But if Divine Providence removes him from an earthly to a higher tribunal, doubtless his own people will reverence him as a saint or a god, while the world will be none the worse for his absence and see in it no cause for regret.

A Wonderful Story.

It is said that in the tombs of the Necropolis of ancien Egypt, two kinds of mummies have been found. One is in complete—that is to say, all organs necessary for life have been seperated from them; the other, on the contrary, is quite complete. Having observed this, a Swedish chemist, Dr. Grasselbach, who has the reputation of being both great and learned, Professor at the University at Upsal, has come to the conclusion that the Egyptian mummies are not all as has been said and believed for some thousands of years, bodies embalmed by any process of preservation whatever, but that they are really the bodies of individuals whose life has been momentarily suspended, with the intention of restoring them at some future time, only the secret of preservation has now been lost. Meanwhile, Prof. Grasselbach adduces many proofs in support of his idea; among others, his experiments during the last ten years, which he says have always proved successful. He took a snake, and treated it in such a manner as to benumb it as though it had been carved in marble, and it was so brittle that had he allowed it to fall, it would have broken into fragments. In this state he kept it for several years, and then restored it to life by sprinkling it with stimulating fluid, the composition of which was his secret.

For fifteen years the snake has been undergoing an existence composed of successive deaths and resurrections, apparently without sustaining any harm. The professor is reported to have sent a petition to his government, requesting that a criminal who has been condemned to death may be given to him, to be treated in the same manner as the snake, promising to restore him to life in two years. It is understood that the man who undergoes the experiment is to be pardoned. Whether the Swedish government has accepted or rejected the learned chemist's proposals is not known.

Like most garments, like most carpets, everything in life has a right side and a wrong side. You can take any joy, and by turning it around find troubles on the other side; or you may take the greatest trouble, and by turning it around, find joy on the other side. The gloomiest mountain never casts a shadow on both sides at once, nor does the greatest of life's calamities.

The loss by the burning of the New Castle Agricultural Works and the Monitor Press Works was about sixty thousand dollars on the former and six thousand on the latter. The Agricultural Works had nearly twenty-three thousand dollars of insurance.

THE AMERICAN WASHER?

PRICE $5.50

THE AMERICAN WASHER SAVES MONEY, TIME, AND DRUDGERY.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken of at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once becomes the fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prospectus and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

$5.50.

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

A JOB OF HANDS.

A RAILROAD ENGINEER POUNDED AND KICKED BY NEARLY FIFTY GERMANS—HURLED OVER A HIGH BALCONY, AND IMPALED ON IRON RAILINGS.

[From the St. Louis Times.]

The Carondelet Hotel was, on Sunday evening, the scene of one of the most brutal and cowardly murders that it has ever been the duty of the press to record. The Working Men's Society is an association whose members, principally German, represent most all of trades. Its headquarters are at Carondelet, and it is the custom of its members to expend their surplus vitality, two or three times a year, in picnics, balls and parties. On Sunday the organization, numbering forty-two individuals, resolved itself into a grand procession, and inspired by the martial strains of a brass band, paraded through the mud in the principal street until dark.

At about 8 o'clock the participants in the procession and their friends commenced to assemble at Carondelet hotel, where a ball was to be give under the auspices of the society. The hotel is situated on Main street, between Taylor and St. Louis streets, and is a large brick building, four stories and an attic in height, and has a front on Maine street of about fifty feet. The ball room is in the fourth story, and its approaches narrow halls and stair cases. At the end of the hall-way in the third story is a balcony of about thirty feet in depth. It is about thirty-five feet from the ground, and is ornamented with a rail some two feet high. It is reached through a narrow door, ordinarily locked, but always unfastened when there's any festivity afloat in the room. To the north of the entrance to the hotel a bar-room, and south of it is a fancy goods store, now unoccupied.

The attendance at the ball was principally members of the society and their wives, daughters and female acquaintances, but there was a small sprinkling of "outsiders," attracted through curiosity, and among them was John Cannon, a railroad engineer. Cannon had been drinking some during the day, and was, while at the ball, somewhat under the influence of liquor. He is represented to have been a quite, inoffensive man, even when in his cups, and it is said that he was the last man, under any circumstances, to provoke a fight. At about 10 o'clock, he was, to use the expression of a man who noticed him, "about half shot." Observing that there was silence in the ball room, he entered, and discovered that it was occasioned by the attention which was paid to a man delivering a speech. The speech was in German, and Cannon turned away, laughingly remarking, "I can't understand that trash; why don't he talk English?"

In an instant he was attacked by half a dozen excited Germans, conspicuous among whom was a tall, powerful man. Cannon was hastily driven from the room into the hall-way, and there an effort was made to throw him down the stairs. He fought well, and threw his antagonists right and left, but they were rapidly re-enforced, and it is estimated by a bystander that at least thirty-five men sprang upon him. Seeing that he had no chance against such an infuriated mob, the doomed man turned to seek safety in flight. In a moment he was caught up and partially pushed and partially drawn half-way down the stairs. Here he recovered himself for a moment, and endeavored to defend himself from his enemies. The struggle was terrible. A large, strong man, fighting with all his power against an angry throng. Those above kicked him until they forced him further down the stairs, when he fell and was thrown to the bottom. He was now on the third floor, fighting those in front of him and closly pursued by the crowd behind. In a moment more he was pinned against the wall, while blows were rained upon his unprotected head and face from muscular arms.

It seems that at this point he foresaw his fate, for he suddenly assailed his foes with an energy they did not believe was left in him, and at the same time he cried "murder!" But his efforts were of little avail. Again he was forced back to the wall, which was soon spattered and stained with his blood. Cruel fists were dashed into his face, and cruel feet kicked and lamed him. His struggles became weaker, and the mob closed in and seized him, and, as if the murderous design had entered into all their minds at once, hurried him toward the door opening upon the balcony. He offered but little resistance now, but his cries for help were piteous. In an instant the door was torn open and he stood upon the balcony. Around him surged and swayed a half-crazed crowd of his fellow creatures, bent upon drowning their hate for him in his blood. Below him in the street were a few men, paralyzed by the spectacle, and unable to raise a hand to help him; above him the stars glittered coldly. One glance around, one more cry for aid, and he sprang toward the door. Thrust back against the rail of the balcony, again pinned helpless, in a second he was lifted over the balustrade.

With the last despairing effort he grasped a portion of it, and hung suspended over the street—kicks and blows fell like a hail-storm on his head, shoulders, and hands, but still he clung to the frail blaustrade, still shrieking for help and moaning with pain. There was no hope for him, his life was not worth the dust that fell upon him from the feet that crowded so thickly over him. He had no mercy to look for in his murderers, for they had not one spark of pity in their live. At last the rail broke, and, with one last grasp at it, he fell.

Turning in his fall, he approched the ground head downward. With a crash he stuck the iron gratlag below, and lay without a movement or a gasp. Charles Decker was the first to reach him, but he was dead. Two bars of the greating had penetrated his skull, his neck and both shoulders were broken, and his breast bone was crushed in. There he lay for nearly an hour, when he was carried to the police station. In the meantime the alarm had summoned the police, and Officers Harkness and Rochow hastened to the theatre of the tragedy. In the ball-room all was tranquil. The fearful scenes of a few moments before were apparently forgotten, and the dancing was fast and furious. The officers, from information gained from some source, sought Jacob Schlegel and Fred. Klinkmann. They were quietly arrested and hurried to stationhouse, where they were locked up to await the inquest. The coroner,s verdict was that John Cannon came to his death from the effects of a fracture of the skull and other injuries, on the evening of Februarp 11, 1872 and we the jury, further find that his death was caused by being thrown over the balcony of the Carondelet hotel, situated on the west side of Main street and between Taylor and St. Louis streets, by Jacob Schlegel, and that Fritz Klinkmann was accessory to the fact, and aided and abetted the said Schlegel in the act. Signed by the jury.

John Cannon was born in New York State, and was, at the time of his death, about thirty years of age.

"OLD FORT DUQUESNE,"—1755.

A THRILLING and EXCITING Historical Tale, beautifully illustrated, and called "Old Fort Duquesne," will be commenced in the March Number of the "PEOPLE'S MONTHLY" of Pittsburgh, the only illustrated paper of any size and pretensions out side of New York. All have heard of this old French fort at Pittsburgh, and the bloody conflicts about it; the Braddock and Grant; its capture by General Forbes; the dreadful Indian frontier warfare; the celebrated chiefs, both White and Red, engaged, and other incidents of absorbing interest to Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Virginia. The very large circulation and popularity of this pure, bright, and attractive Monthly should convince all of its merit, but if any doubt, they can have three months trial of it, for only 25 cts. Yearly price, $2.50 in advance. Examine the wonderfully-liberal premium list. Live agents wanted, on big commission in every locality. Address, "PEOPLE'S MONTHLY," Pittsburgh, Pa.

We understand that the whooping-cough is quite prevalent in the towns around us; but that no cases have proved fatal. Some families use nothing but Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. Our Doctor, however, says a little ipicac, to produce vomiting, would be an advantage.

There are more than one thousand different kinds of pills in the United States. Some of them are worthless and injurious, others are good and beneficial. Old Dr. Parsons invented the best anti bilious pill we ever saw or heard of. They are now sold under the name of Parsons' Purgative Pills.

A SINGULAR CASE.

On the 29th of July, says the Boston Journal, Charles Pitman, a lad ten years of age, son of J. R. Pitman, then of Skowhegan, Maine, who has since removed to North Massachusetts, while at Waterville, Maine, attempted to blow a cherry stone with a pin thrust through it with a hollow stick of elder. The missile struck on the tube, and in drawing a breath quickly to more forcibly eject it he sucked cherry stone and pin into his lung. No amount of coughing and choking could dislodge it, and from that time signs of consumption began to appear. Some time in September his parents took him to the Massachusetts General Hospital in this city, where the operation of cutting open the windpipe and inserting a silver tube was performed.

From this time to the 12th day of February he has spoken only in a whisper, and breathed through the tube in his neck. His health, otherwise than the terrible cough caused by the pin and cherry stone in his lung, which has been gradually wearing him down, has been better than could have been expected. Last Monday night he gave a terrible cough and strangled, and seizing the tube with his own hands, drew it out of his neck, and clapping his hand over the incision pulled from the tube the pin and cherry. The stone had enlarged considerably and the pin was badly corroded. The health of the boy has steadily improved since then.

THE LARGEST STEER IN THE WORLD.—Jocob R. Stultzfuss, of Leacock township, brought to Lancaster, to-day, a steer that is said to be the largest ever fattened in this or any other age or country. Good judges believe it will weigh 4,000 pounds. A friend well posted in the weight of heavy cattle, furnishes us the following as the weight of the heaviest cattle ever slaughtered in this country:

The champion New York steer weighed live weight, 3,300 pounds; dressed 2,453. The weight was disputed, some parties asserting that the steer was not fairly dressed.

The Berks County steer, admitted by everybody to be fairly dressed, weighed alive 3,250 pounds, dressed 2,388.

The Lancaster county steer, fed by John Sener, and admitted by all to have been fairly dressed, weighed alive, 4,380 pounds; dressed 2,453½.

There was a steer brought from Ohio, and killed in Philadelphia, that weighed dressed, 2,468 pounds; but butchers said it was not fairly dressed, as the heart fat and part of the gut-fat was left in. It is believed that the Stultzfuss steer brought to Lancaster to-day, will far outweigh all the above, as it in all respects out-measures them. It will remain on free exhibition at the stables of Sensenig's Hotel until the 27th inst when it will be slaughtered.—Lancaster Intelligencer, 20th.

AMERICAN HOMES.—The illustrations and stories in the Feby., number of this popular dollar magazine are of the first order, George Alfred Townsend has a story entitled "A Chesapeake Wonder Tale," which is of absorbing interest, and a serial by him to be called "Crutch the Page, a Tale of Washington City," will be begun in the next number. It cannot fail to create a decided sensation. The Brooklyn Eagle says that "American Homes is edited with a singularly symmetrical judgment, and that it gives more thought and entertainment for one dollar a year than any monthly publication in the United States." Subscriptions for American Homes are pouring in from sections of the country and Canada, and it is meeting with great success, its premium engraving to every subscriber proving a great card. An unique list of premiums is offered, and ladies and girls can dress elegantly without cost by getting subscribers.

THE largest stationary steam-engine in the world has lately been finished in Philadelphia and erected at the Lehigh Zinc Works. The weight of the engine is 650 tons, and it is capable of being worked to 3000-horse power, pumping from 15,000 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute, from a depth of 300 feet.

Fundamental Elements of Agriculture.

1. All land on which clover or the grasses are grown must either have lime in it naturally or it must be artificially supplied in the form of stone lime, oyster shell lime, or marl.

2. All improvements of lands must look to lime as its basis.

3. Lands that have long been in culture will be benefitted by application in the form of bone dust, guano, native phosphate of lime, composts of fish, ashes or in oyster shell lime or marl, if the land need liming also.

4 No land can be preserved in a high state of fertility, unless the clover and the grasses are cultivated in the course of rotation.

5. Mould is indispensible in every soil, and a healthy supply alone can be preserved through the cultivation of clover and the grasses, the turning in of green crops, or by the application of compost rich in the elements of mould.

6. All highly concentrated animal manures are increased in value and the benefit prolonged by the admixture of plaster or pulverized charcoal.

7. Deep ploughing and subsoiling greatly improvos the productive powers of a variety of soil that is not wet.

8. All wet land should be drained.

9. All grain crops should be harvested several days before the grain is thoroughly ripe.

10. Clover, as well as other grasses intended for hay, should be mowed when in bloom.

11. Sandy lands can be most effectually improved by clay. If such land require liming, it is best done by compost of lime and clay. In slacking lime salt brine is better than water.

12. The chopping or grinding of grain to be fed to stock effects a saving of at least twenty five per cent.

13. The draining of wet lands adds to their value by making them produce more and better crops, by producing them earlier and by improving the health of the neighborhood.

14. To manure or lime wet lands is to throw manure, lime and labor away.

15. Shallow ploughing operates to impoverish the soil; while decreasing the production.

16. By stabling and shedding stock during the winter, the saving of one fourth of the food required is made than if they were exposed to the inclemency of the weather.

17. A bushel of plaster per acre sown breadcast over clover, will add from 50 to 100 per cent. to its produce.

18. Thorough preparation of land is absolutely necessary to the successful and luxuriant growth of crops.

INFLUENCE OF FOOD ON THE QUALITY OF PORK.—As the result of experiments in England upon the influence of food upon the quality of pork, it is stated that pigs nourshed with milk give the best flavored meat and thd greatest weight; next to which come those fed with grain, maize, barley, oats, and peas. Potatoes furnish a loose, light, tasteless flesh, which wastes away very much in cooking; while that of animals fed upon clover is yellow and of a poor flavor. Oil-cakes and oil-seeds produce a loose, fatty flesh, of an unpleasant taste; beans a hard, indigestible, and unsavory meat; and acorns are but little bettr.

SOME one wants to know what becomes of the bits of a woman's mind.

Emergencies.

If a person falls down in a fit, and begins to snore loudly, with very red face, it is apoplexy; let him be seated so as to favor the blood going downwards, away from the head; apply cold cloths to the head, or cushions of equal quantities of snow or pounded ice and common salt. If the person i perfectly still, face pale, and ther is no perceptible breathing, it is a fit of fainting. Do not touch him, except to loosen the clothing; then keep off five or ten feet distant, so as to allow the air to come in; make no noise, and there will very soon be a calm, quiet return to consciousness and life; for it is only a momentary cessation of the circulation of the blood to the head. But suppose there is a very violent motion of hand and feet, and all sorts of bodily contortions, it is Epilepsy; let the man contort until he is tired; you can't hold him still; all your efforts only tend to aggravate the trouble and to exhaust the strength; all that ought to be done i to keep the unfortunate from hurting himself. There is no felt suffering, for as soon as he comes to he will tell you that he remembers notning whatever of what has passed. appear to be the only calm and self possessed person in the whole crowd, and is apparently as perfectly well as before the occurrence. Dizziness often comes instantaneously, and we begin to reel before we know it. Shut the eyes, whether you are walking along the street, looking over a precipice, ascending a ladder, or climbing to a ship's masthead: the fear or dizziness disappears instantly if you look upward.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Damp Clothing.

If the clothes which cover the body are damp, the moisture which they contain has a tendency to evaporate by the heat communicated to it by the body. The heat absorbed in the evaporation of the moisture contained in clothes must be in part supplied by the body, and will have a tendency to reduce the temperature of the body in an undue degree, and thereby to produce cold. The effect of violent labor or exercise is to cause the body to generate heat much faster than it would do in a state of rest. Hence we see how, when clothes have been rendered wet by rain or by perspiration, the taking of cold may be avoided by keeping the body in a state of exercise or labor until the clothes can be changed which in every case should be done as quickly as possible, particularly underclothing, as stockings, vests and shirts; if not, rheumatism will sooner or later set in,

CAUSES OF THE ROTTING OF FRUIT.—According to Decaisne, the rotting of fruit is produced by two microscopic fungi, which develop in moist, confined air; namely Mucor mucedo and Pennicillium glaucum, infinitely minute germs of which are continually floating in the atmosphese, and which attack more especially any injured or abraded portion of the surface. If, now the fruit be wrapped up in cotton, or with soft tissue paper, or, still better, with waxed paper or tin foil, the introduction of these germs will be prevented, and the fruit can be kept for a long time without any appreciable change.

CHOCOLATE CAKE.—One cup sugar, one half cup butter, one half cup milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful soda, and two cups flour; grate one-half a cake chocolate and mix with one half cup milk and the yolk of one egg; sweeten to taste and add one teaspoon vanilla; boil till soft, and then mix together and bake three quarters of an hour. This will make one very large cake.

Or bake the first mixture in sheets, and after baking the chocolate, spread it between, and it will make a delicious chocolate jelly cake.

IN treating animals that are ailing from some unknown cause, it is best to act with caution in giving physic. Generally warm gruel or mashes, with a change of feed, in which some flax seed meal or gently laxative medicine has been mixed, with warm shelter, will effect a cure when violent and mistaken remedies would be only a sudden means of death. Almost all complaints spring from exposure or overwork or bad feed.

KEROSENE.—It is well to remember that in cases of kerosene fires an attempt to extinguish the flames with water will only spread the fire. Instead, smother the flames with blankets, woolen cloths, quilts, shawls, or whatever may be at hand.

The cause of a felon is usually a bruise of the finger heavy enough to reach down to the bone and to inflame it.

Hoofland's German Bitters.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind.

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or VITAL PRINCIPLE OF ROOTS, HERBS, and BARKS, (or, as medicinally termed, Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used. Therefore in one Bottle of this Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons or ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, when they compounded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others: no desire for stimulants can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circumstances, have any but a beneficial effect.

Hoofland's German Tonic.

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases when some alcoholic stimulant is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the bitters is overcome forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasent to the palate, and containing the medicinal virtues of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1,50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulant used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefittad by it, will most certainly be cheated.

HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania at present Member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writes:

PHILADELPHIA, March 18, 1871.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in case of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.

HON, JAS. THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania,

PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1867.

I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my own experience o it.
Yours, with respect, JAS. THOMPSON.

Hon. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1868.

I have found by experience that "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a very good tonic, relieving dyspeptic symptoms almost directly.
GEORGE SHARSWOOD

HON. JAS. M. WOOD, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pa.

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so weak, as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure. JAMES M. WOOD.

REMEMBER
THAT
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES

Are the medicines you require to purify the Blood, excite the torpid Liver to healthy action, and to enable you to pass safely through any hardships or exposure.

DR. HOOFLAND'S
PODOPHYLLIN,
Or Substitue for Mercury Pills.
TWO PILLS A DOSE.
The Most Powerful, Yet Innocent Vegetable Cathartic Known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these Pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels all impurities. The principal ingredient is Podophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleaning it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. The tonic effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, REGULATES the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can retain a hold, or ever assail you.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by Express to any locality, upon application to the PRINCIPAL OFFICE, at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE, 631 Arch St., Philadelphia.

Medical.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attacks of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it comes to breed infection throughout the body, and then on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leycorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints; Torpidity, Congestion of Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are LANGUID and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Medical.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so wide and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to cold and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of agne medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remidies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residence in, or travelling through malarious localities, will be protected by taking the Ague Cure daily

For Liver Complaints, arise from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Perpared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

THE WEEK,
A RESUME OF CURRENT OPINION, HOME AND FOREIGN.
THE WEEK fills a place unoccupied hitherto in American journalism, though its importance has long ago been demonstrated in England. From week to week it presents the cream of home and foreign journalism, and gathers from the leading papers of America and England, and of all sections and parties, the most important utterances on current questions of Politics, Society, Religion, Literature, Science, Art, Music, the Drama, and all other topics likely to interest the reader. In addition to the longer articles, which themselves cover every variety of subject, there is Literary Gossip, Science and Art Gossip, Musical and Dramatic Gossip, and General Notes and News, giving the freshest and most copious intelligence in all these departments. In no other paper can be found so large and so various an amount of instructive and entertaining reading matter.
The first No. of The Week was published on December 2d of last year, and in the short space of two months has achieved a most decided and flattering success. No paper has ever received more cordial words from the press and the critics, and it is the general testimony that The Week has met an important and well-defined want in the journalism of America.
Read what the Press says.
THE WEEK is the title of a new paper which bids fair to fill a void in New York journalism. It is filled with a selection of the more noticeable articles of the various daily papers—not editorial merely, but extracts also from news and correspondence. Thus at a glance the busy man who has had no leisure to see more than one, if any, daily paper during the week, gets the cream of the entire newspaper literature—not the metropolitan only, but of other cities, and to some extent of foreign capitals also.—Brooklyn Eagle.
THE WEEK is a new paper which ought to take a permanent place in American journalism. Possessed of it the reader will find that he can dispense with most other journals and still keep abreast of the most enlightened current opinion on Politics, Society, Religion, Art, Music, and the Drama, and the like.—Springfield Republican.
THE WEEK is the title of a new paper whose idea we like. The selections are well made, and we hope THE WEEK will find abundant patronage.—Independent.
Its success ought not to be a matter of doubt.—Chicago Journal.
THE WEEK is a 16 page paper of large size, with three broad columns to the page, and is neatly and tastefully printed.
TERMS—$3 a year; single copy 8 cents. Trial subscription, 4 consecutive numbers for 25 cents.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, February 28, 1872.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

We would call the special attention of postmasters and our subscribers to the followinw synopsis of the newspaper laws:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter, (returning a paper does not answer the aw,) when a subscriber does not take his paper ent of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken; and a neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for is payment.
2. Any person who takes a paper faom the post-office, whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is reponsible for the payment.
3. If a person orders his paper to be discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.
4. If the subscriber orders the paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it, if he takes it out of the post-office. The law proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.
5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima-facie evidence of intentional fraud.

READ the Poem, on our 2nd page, entitled "John Burns at Gettysburg."

DOUGLASS is coming. Will be at Reynolds' Hall, Tuesday, March 5th. He will lecture on "Self-Made Men."

A FIRE at Selinsgrove, Pa., on the night of the 21st inst., destroyed thirteen dwellings, five stores, a Baptist church and twelve stables and barns.—Loss $100,000.

THE citizens of the Gap, Lancaster county, and vicinity, intend erecting a monument to the memory of William Penn, near the spot where Penn took his first dinner on his first and last visit to this country.

EVERY person wants to get the worth of their money. There is no more certain way of getting it than by going to hear the able orator Fred. Douglass, on Tuesday evening the 5th of March, at Reynolds' Hall.

WE earnestly call the attention of our readers to the fact, that Hon. Fred A. Douglass, will Lecture in Reynold's Hall, on Tuesday evening, March 5th. Under the auspices of the Undine Fire Company. Subject "Self Made Men." Everybody wants to hear him.

RESUMED.—We learn from the Philipsburg Journal that the Morrisdale miners have resumed labor, having agreed with the operator upon a compromise, by which the weight of coal by the Railroad Company's weigher, at Tyrone scales, is to determine the quantity mined.

W. H. WILKINSON & Co., of the Bush House, Bellefonte, Penna., are furnishing their new Billiard Room with Phelan & Collonder Standard Tables. They offer for sale cheap, the Billiard Tables now in the Hotel, if applied for soon. Also for sale, a Chickering Piano (been in use but a few months) at a bargain, sold for want of use.

WHY did not the Undine Fire Company parade on the 22nd. There is no excuse for them. They have their uniforms and nice ones they are too. Why not show them, when you could show your patriotism and your love for the "Father of his Country," at the same time?

WHO?—Who invited the Sellar Zouaves to Bellefonte on the 22d? Was it the Logan Fire Co., the Undines No. 2, or the citizens? We think there is something wrong somewhere. Somebody is to blame. It is more than wrong—it is an outrage to bring so fine a looking company of men and soldiers from their homes, and keep them here all day without first having made ample provision for the benefit of the inner man.

NOTICE.—Postmaster General J. A. J. Creswell, issued a very important notice on the first instant. It is earnestly desired that in all cases the name of the county, as well as the post office and State, be superscribed upon all letters, circulars, newspapers, and other matters, to be forwarded by mail. The Department urgently requests a strict compliance of this order, to facilitate the distribution and secure a speedy transmission of the heavy mails now passing over the different railroads.

REVIVALS.—The revival in the M. E. Church in this place is yet progressing. About one hundred and fifty as nearly as we can learn have embraced religion, and attached themselves to the church. Rev. Jas. Mullin as we have frequently said is one of the most able and learned preachers in this country. We are very sorry indeed that his ministerial career is so near a close. This is his third year with us and under the economy of the M. E. Church he can stay no longer. We are sorry that it is so; but the church wills it and we submit. Will we be blessed with his equal next year? We doubt it; but we will trust to providence.

—The Milesburg revival in the M. E. Church, in that place is still in progress. Some 24 persons have embraced religion and joined the church, and we are informed the altar is crowded every night. Let the good work go on.

JNO. BURNS.—We were shown a letter last week which was written February 8th, by Clement Dale, who is now tending college at Gettysburg. It was written to his father C. Dale, of Harris tp., this county. From this letter we make the following extract:

"John Burns, whom you were inquiring about last winter when we were at home, died on last Saturday. He was buried with full military honors. The Gettysburg Zouaves officiating upon the occasion. After the funeral services were performed, the whole company fired three volleys over his grave. His history in brief as I have it from other persons is this: He had been a soldier in the war of 1812, and after the war settled in this place where he has lived ever since. When the rebels invaded Pennsylvania in 1863 and the battle took place here. He took his own rifle and went out to lend a helping hand in order to drive back the rebel forces, thereby showing his patriotism. As I am told he received several wounds and for his nobleness and bravery as well as his patriotism, he was buried with military honors. I was at his funeral and it was altogether something new for me. It gave me some idea of the last offices performed for many soldiers during the late war."

FIRE AGAIN.—Our peaceful and enterprising citizens were again aroused from their slumbers by the cry of fire, on Friday night last.

This time it was in the Northern portion of our town. It was firsts discovered in the stable belonging to John. Moran, Esq., and soon communicated with the stable belonging to the Parsonage of the Reformed Church. Notwithstanding the fire companies were on the ground, the fire could not be controled and the stables were totally destroyed. A cow and calf belonging to Mr Moran were burned. Are these fires not becoming too frequent? We do not believe, that they are incendiary; but may they not be the result of carelessness: Would it not be well for our Fire Companies, or the Town Council to appoint a night watch, composed of four or six reliable and responsible men? We throw out these suggestions.—our citizens can act upon them if they think proper.

DOUGLASS SNUBBED AGAIN.—The Erie Gazette of last week says that Fred Douglass was in that city a day or two ago, and it seems was refused permission to ride in the Reed House 'bus from the depot to the hotel. He walked to the hotel, however, where he was refused meals at the dining room table. If Mr. Douglass had been an Indian, a Japanese, a Chinaman, a rebel, or anything but a colored philanthropist, no questions would have probably been asked. However, Mr. Douglass being "snubbed" in Erie will not interfere with his lecture in this place on Tuesday, March 5th. Let everybody go and hear him.

A GOOD PUDDING.—The following recipe is especially commended by the Germantown Telegraph, of Philadelphia: Pare and core half a dozen easily cooked apples, chop them into small bits; dry some bread in the oven—stale is the best—until it is crisp, then roll it into crumbs; butter a deep dish and place in it a layer of crumbs; then put in the apples, with a little sugar, and such spices as you like; cover the apples with another layer of crumbs, and so on, adding a little beef suet, chopped as finely as possible; pour in half a pint of milk; bake till nicely browned, and serve with hard sauce.

LOOK OUT FOR COUNTERFEITS.—Merchants, railroad officials, retail dealers, bank officers, in short, all who receive paper money cannot exercise too great care at this time against counterfeits. Never was there so much bogus currency in circulation, and seldom have the efforts to get it in circulation been so persistent and well managed. The worthless stuff embraces all denominations from the $50 United States greenback down to a fifty cent note. Legal tender and national bank notes are alike counterfeited, and right skillfully too.

MARKET FOR FARMERS.—T. Newton Wolf, Proprietor of Wolf's store three and a half miles east of Rebersburg, and of another store 7½ miles below the above named town. He is one of Centre county's most enterprising men. He deals in Dry goods of all kinds and lumbermens provisions. Persons having oats or fresh meat for sale will find a ready market at Wolf's store, and receive the cash for all they have to sell if they desire it. Call and see him.

TOBACCO STORE.—The tobacco store of Hiram Hoffer, in the Conrad House, under its new management is proving to be a complete success. Mr. Hoffer has received a large stock of tobacco, snuff, segars, meerschaum and other pipes, paper collars, &c. All lovers of the weed, will save money by purchasing from him. He has made a fixed determination not to be undersold.

LIST of Letters remaining in the Bellefonte Post office, and unclaimed, Feb. 26, 1872:

Miss Annie Coan, Miss Ann Cathcart, Mrs. Mary Fleming—2. Mrs. Sarah Garbrich, Miss Rose Gilmore, Mrs. Garrett, Adam Hazell, Miss Bell Hunter, E. A. Kolpatzer, John Lair, Miss Jennie Miller, Miss Annie Miller, Capt. John McCage, Miss Harriet Poorman, George Roth.

THE RESULT.—On the evening of the 23rd inst our citizens turned out in large numbers to hear, according to previous announcement the great Lecture of Rev. Jas. Mullen, Pastor of the M. E. Church in this place, entitled "Uncharitable Criticism". When the Hall was well filled and hour had come for the Lecture, Levi A. Miller appeared upon the stage and introduced Rev. Mullen, as nearly as we can remember, as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen:—I congratulate you in behalf of Logan Fire Company, No. 1, by saying we have been fortunate in securing the services and talents of one so favorably known as an orator, scholar and christian gentleman, to address you, words of mine can add but little to the laurels which encircle the brow of the distinguished clergyman whom I now introduce as the Rev. James Mullen, Pastor in charge of the M. E. Church of Bellefonte."

After this introduction Rev. Mullen, made his appearance. It was too good, rich and spicy for us to attempt a report; but we will say that the lecture and the lecturer will compare favorably with any of the traveling lecturers in the country who are receiving from $100 to $150 for each night, and in our judgment surpass any lecture that has been delivered here and any of those who delivered them. The Logans realized a handsome sum.

BOOTS & SHOES.—We are authorized to state that Jno. Powers one of the best mechanics in town or country has just received one of the largest stocks of Boots & shoes ever brought to Bellefonte. This stock, in order to make room for the spring trade, he proposes to sell 40 per cent. cheaper than they can be purchased at the stores, or at any other establishment of the kind in this place. Just think of it. Forty per cent. lower than they can be purchased elsewhere. Citizens of Centre male and female, look to your interests.

MUSIC.—The Philipsburg Band, notoriously known as one of the best bands in the country, and composed of a fine looking and moral body of men, visited our town on Friday last. They had been in Snow Shoe celebrating the 22nd' and were brought here by that enterprising man and prince of good fellows, John Uzzle, of Snow Shoe, at his own expense. He deserves the thanks of, our citizens for bringing to their own doors, this rich musical treat.

POTATOES.—Jas. Baker, Esq., of Linden Hall, Harris Township, has certainly few if any equals in raising potatoes. He has made it a study and always draws the premium at our county fair. He has presented us with three varieties, a peck of each to wit; the Climax, the Excelsior and the Prolific. He will of course be in the market in good season with his early seed potatoes.

PILGRIM.—Your excellent communication, does not appear this week for the reason that it was mislaid by the Editor. It will appear next week. It will not spoil. A little patience friends. You know accidents will happen in the best of families.

NOTICE.—We wish you would do us the favor to notice in the REPUBLICAN that Simon Lyons, who has, here to fore, been at the Bellefonte Meat Market in our employ., has left our place.

A. MULLEN & Co.

AN IMPOSITION.—As contemptible a trick as has come under our notice for a long time was put upon the Rev. Dr. S. H. Meade, of the Episcopal Church of this place, a short time since. On February 8th this clergyman was called upon to unite a gentleman and Miss Bessie Middleton in the holy bonds of matrimony. Previous to performing the ceremony, he put the usual interrogatory and placed both parties upon oath, both swearing that they were of age. Satisfied that all was right—the sister of the bride and a relative of the groom being present—he married them. A day or two subsequently, he was honored with a call from the mother of the bride, who poured forth a doleful tale, and declared that her daughter was a minor, and had married without her consent. She would not be pacified, and notwithstanding the law which exonerates clergymen in such cases when they do not know the parties or either of them to be minors, was determined to bring a process of law. Rather than suffer the trouble and expense of a suit at law, Mr. Meade compromised the matter by offering to assist the young couple to the articles necessary for room keeping, the plea of the mother being that the young man could not afford to furnish a room for housekeeping, that she had her (the mother's) goods already packed preparatory to departure, and she could not leave her daughter unprovided for. He did as he had proposed, when mother and daughter immediately packed the furniture he had supplied with the mother's goods, and both started for Parker's Landing, leaving the young husband in the lurch. It has since transpired that the parties were married with the knowledge of the mother, she even accompanying them a portion of the way to the place where they were married. It is also rumored that this is a little game to which the aforesaid mother is addicted, and ministers of the gospel in Parker's Landing who do not wish to furnish a house would do well to avoid performing anything but the burial service for a member of the family.—Philipsburg Journal.

WOMEN 150 YEARS AGO.—The following advertisements appeared in an English paper 150 years ago:

CHALLENGE.—I, Elizabeth Wilkinson, of Clerkenwell, having had some words with Hannah Ryfield and requiring satisfaction, do write to her to meet me upon the stage, and box me for three guineas; each woman holding half a crown in each hand and the first woman that drops the money to lose the battle.

That Hannah knew how to "put up her hands" may be inferred from her replf:

ANSWER.—I, Hannah Ryfield, hearing of the resolutions of Elizabeth Wilkinson, will not fail, God willing (?) to give her more blows than words—desiring home blows and from her no favor.—She may expect a good thumbing.

MR. EDITOR:—In the Watchman of the 16th inst., I notice an article from the Philipsburg Journal, which mentions several large logs, the largest of which measured 37 inches in diameter. Here is something that will beat it. On the 19th of February, John Ardell, Jr., hauled, among other large logs, a log to Forge Run, for the Beaver Mills & Lumber Co. of Williamsport, taken from their lands, a log which measured 43 inches in diameter, and contained 1402 feet. Scaled by D. H. Chandler, scaler.

In the winter of 1868, Mr. Ardell stocked a log which measured 44 inches in diameter and contained 1477 feet.

AN IDYL OF THE PERIOD.

BY A. D.

PART I.

"Come right in; How are you Fred?
Find a chair, and have a light;
Well, old boy, recovered yet
From the Mather's jam last night?"
"Didn't dance, the German's old,"
Didn't you?—I had to lead—
Awful bore. But where were you?"
"Sat it out" with Mollie Meade—
Jolly little girl she is—
Said she didn't care to dance;
"D'rather have a quiet chat"—
Then she gave me such a glance.
So, when you had cleared the room,
And had captured all the chairs;
Having no where else, we two
Took possession of the stairs.
I was on the lower step,
Mollie on the next above,
Gave me her boquet to hold,
Asked me to draw off her glove.
Then of counsel squeezed her hand,
Talked about my wasted life—
Said my sole salvation, must
Be a true and gentle wife.
She believed me, every word,
Almost said she loved me—Jove!
Such a voice I never heard,
Gave me some symbolic flower,
Had a meaning, oh! so sweet,
Don't know where it is, I'm sure,
Must have dropped it in the street.
How I spooned, and she ha! ha!
Well I know it was'nt all right;
But she did believe me so
That I kissed her"—"pass a light."

PART II.

"Mollie Meade, well I declare!
Who'd have thought of seeing you,
After what occurred last night,
Out here on the Avenue."
"Oh! you awful, awful girl.
There—don't blush I saw it all."
"Saw all what?" Ahem!—"Last night!
At the Mather's, in the hall!
Was'nt he an awful goose?"
"Most men must be caught, but he
Ran his neck right in the noose.
I was almost dead to dance—
I'd have done it, if I could,
But old Grey said I must stop—
And I promised Ma I would,
So I looked up sweet, and said:
I'd much rather talk with him;
Hope he didn't see my face,
Luckily the lights were dim.
Then how hard he squeezed my hand,
And he looked up in my face
With his lovely great big eyes—
Really its a dreadful case,
He was all in earnest, too;
But I thought I'd have to laugh
When he kissed a flower I gave,
Looking, Oh! like such a calf.
I suppose he has it now
In a wine glass on his shelves;
It's a mystery to me, why
Men will deceive themselves."
"Saw him kiss me? oh! you wretch.
Well, he begged so hard for me,
And I thought there'd no one know,
So I let him, just for fun.
I know it was'nt really right
To trifle with his feelings, dear;
But men are such conceited things,
They need a lesson once a year."

If you wish to favor yourself with a rich, literary and eloquent treat, be sure to go and hear Fred. Douglass, Tuesday evening March 5th, at Reynolds' Hall.

"HOW TO GO WEST."—Forty years ago, Illinois was as far West as most people wished to go, and journeys were made in the legendary "Prairie Schooner," but in these days of Progress and Improvement, the word West has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the Traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid Line of Railroad.

This Line of Railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., from Indianapolis over the Indianapolis, Bloomington & Wester Short Line, and from Logansport, over the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw R. R., and running through BURLINGTON, reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St, Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas, Pacific and other Railroads running from those cities.

Always go "By way of Burlington," and you will be sure to be right.

The Burlington Route has admirably answered the question, "How to go West?" by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to Time, Connections, Accommodations, rates of Fare and other interesting items, and illustrated by a large map, truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing, General Passenger Agent, B. & M. R. R., Burlington, Iowa. 4-3-3m.

HON. FRED A. DOUGLASS, the greatest orator of the age, will lecture at Reynold's Hall, March 5th.

A CHICAGO PHYSICIAN.

DR. JOSEPH S. LANE, of 351 State St., Chicago writes: "I was called in to see a case of Inflamation of the Kidneys that had been treated by one of of our most eminent physicians. I saw from the symptoms that if your MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS was what it was represented to be, it would be the best thing I could prescribe. I did so, and with the most gratifying results. The patient had been confined to her room for some time, but after a few days use of the Bitters, she was able to be about and is now doing her own housework. I think very highly of your preparation and intend to use it constantly in my practice." 6-1.n
